It is no accident that every time the tax-and-spend Johnson Administration dreams up a new program of injustice the Arkansas Gazette rushes into print with a wordy explanation that what the Washingtonians propose isn't so really unjust after all.

It is no accident, I say, for the Arkansas Gazette is a modern version of what used to be known as a Yellow-Dog Democratic paper—the reverse, that is, of the Chicago Tribune, the Republican house organ.

Just the other day the financial authority, Wall Street Journal, reported that the tax-hungry Johnson administration is planning a campaign to abolish tax-exempt local industrial bond issues—a campaign which we attacked in this column.

But this morning the Gazette followed its usual practice of explaining the "party line", in Leland DuVall's business column, attacking the wisdom of the Washington robbery plan and asserting it wouldn't steal very much from Arkansas' industrial future anyway.

Mr. DuVall conceded that Arkansas has outstanding a total of 175 industrial bond issues with an aggregate value of 333 million dollars, and that 38 of the 100 states use the tax-exempt gimmick to attract new industry. His own figures make Mr. DuVall's implication that the Washington conspiracy amounts only to petty thieving patently absurd.

I have already spelled out for you in an earlier column what revocation of local tax-exempt bonding authority would mean to our community and hundreds like us.

Neighboring Ashdown voted nearly 50 million dollars in tax-exempt industrial bonds and got a paper mill for the west side of Little River.

Champion Paper has been negotiating for a year on a site on our side of the river—and Champion actually selects this site and Hempstead county is barred by the Washingtonians from doing the same kind of financing that has already been accomplished at Ashdown then the net result would be that we lose a giant paper mill.

The Arkansas Gazette considers flattery of the Washingtonians to be a greater virtue than loyalty to its own Arkansas people.

Suit Dropped,
Humphrey Gets
a Free Ride

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and the head of the Justice Department's antitrust division flew to St. Louis this week in a plane furnished by the Anheuser-Busch Co. less than a month after the government dropped an antitrust action against the firm.

A spokesman for Humphrey said the vice president knew nothing about any antitrust action against the big St. Louis brewing company when he made the trip to attend the All-Star baseball game and take part in a luncheon of major Democratic party contributors.

The Justice Department official, Asst. Atty. Gen. Donald F. Turner, said Humphrey's office notified him several weeks ago to accompany the vice president on the trip. Turner described the trip as a "social occasion."

Disclosure of the trip came a day after it was ascertained that Anheuser-Busch executives and their wives contributed a total of $10,000 to the President's Club, composed of persons who contribute at least $1,000 to the Democratic party.

The contributions were recorded May 24. Less than a month later—on June 17—the justice Department dismissed an antitrust suit it had brought against the brewing firm in 1962 to drop acquisition of a malting plant.

Attacks Pick Up in Race for Governor

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Raymond Rebsamen said Thursday night that he has no hesitancy in promising that if he is elected governor he will run the affairs of Arkansas "more efficiently than they are being run at the present time."

Rebsamen said in a televised speech that he is the only candidate "who has had the experience in running an organization" similar in scope to the state government.

He said one of the first goals of his administration will be to vocational training for young persons so they can get good jobs.

Revenues to the state will grow as the economy grows, he said, without tax increases. Rebsamen promised to put the highest priority on increasing teachers' salaries.

Elsewhere in the Democratic gubernatorial race, Dale Alford attacked fellow candidates Jim Johnson and Frank Holt in a speech at De Queen.

He denied Johnson's charges that he had changed his stand on states' rights: "Heaven knows I have never changed in my loyalty to the Constitution of the United States and preservation of the American free enterprise system."

"Jim Johnson is the one who has changed," Alford said. He said Johnson supported Gov. Orval Faubus in the 1962 campaign and now is attacking the Faubus administration.

Frank Holt, Alford said, is not letting the people know "that he is a puppet of the most vicious, sinister, corrupt machine" in the history of Arkansas.

Holt discussed law enforcement at Pine Bluff, and said he favored an expansion of the Arkansas State Police's Criminal Investigation Division, so it could be of more help to county and city law enforcement officials.

He said the state is not evading the national trend toward lawlessness. Among his proposals to stop this trend were the CID expansion, an increase in activities at the Arkansas Police Academy, better rehabilitation methods with paroled criminals and a "revolutionary" change in the handling of juvenile cases.

Major Rail

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. jets brought the 17-month air war against North Viet Nam to a new high Thursday with a record 114 missions. Communist MIGs clashed with the American raiders four times.

During the day of furious action, U.S. Air Force and Navy jets also dodged surface-to-air missiles and reported knocking out a major bridge on the railroad line connecting Hanoi with Red China.

"It was a big day in the North," a U.S. spokesman said today.

In two encounters with MIGs near Hanoi, U.S. Air Force fighters shot down two late-model MIG21s. These kills were announced within a few hours of the action, but the Navy disclosed today that three F8 Crusaders of the 7th Fleet aircraft carrier Oriskany were attacked by two MIG75s 26 miles southeast of Hanoi.

One MIG and one Crusader were damaged but neither plane went down, a spokesman said.

In a fourth encounter, also disclosed today, two MIG75s made a firing pass at a flight of F105 Air Force Thunderchiefs and then fled without scoring hits, a U.S. spokesman said. The Thunderchiefs were attacking a missile site about 40 miles northwest of Hanoi.

The U.S. spokesman said a flight of F4 Phantom jets from the carrier Ranger was fired upon by two ground-to-air missiles 30 miles southeast of Hanoi. He said the 36-foot long missiles exploded harmlessly well away from the U.S. planes.

Air Force F105 pilots reported destroying the Dap Cau railroad-highway bridge 19 miles northeast of Hanoi. The spokesman said aerial photographs showed the two center spans of the six-span steel bridge were dropped into the Cau River.

Heat Deaths
124, Cold
Front Seen

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A slow-moving cold front offered a glimmer of hope today to areas blistering under a lengthy heat wave, especially in the parched Midwest and South.

In St. Louis and surrounding areas, where 124 heat-related deaths have been recorded since last Friday, the Weather Bureau has predicted the seventh straight day of temperatures of 100 degrees or more.

There was a slight chance, however, that a mass of cool air about 150 miles north of St. Louis might drop down into the area.

New England slipped out of the grip of a two-day heat wave Thursday, with the temperature dropping into the 80s and 70s. The forecast is for continued relatively cool weather.

In Denver, a high of 84 snapped a 12-day string of 90-plus readings, just one day shy of the 1878 record of 13 straight days over 90. The highest reading in the 12 days was 98.

Baltimore has had nine successive days in the 90s.

New York's acting governor, Malcolm Wilson, has asked the Agriculture Department to declare Jefferson and Lewis counties in the northern part of the state, drought disaster areas. It was 95 degrees in New York City Thursday.

The clash of cool and hot air produced a belt of thunderstorms from the Mid-Atlantic Coast westward to the Rockies. Heavy rain fell in some areas.

Of the 124 deaths in the St. Louis area, 85 were in the city alone. Helen L. Taylor, city coroner, said most victims were elderly and highly susceptible to prolonged periods of heat.

Tropical storm Celia, located about 900 miles east southeast of Miami, is moving towards the west northwest at about 14 m.p.h., but is not considered a threat to any land area for the next 24 to 48 hours.

Another Big
Blast Rips
Powder Plant

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP) — Another explosion ripped the Hercules Powder Co. plant near Carthage early today as demolition experts were preparing to inspect the already shattered plant.

It was the ninth blast at the sprawling, 1,200-acre plant since noon Thursday when shock waves reached Kansas City, 140 miles north, and Tulsa, 125 miles southwest.

The latest blast occurred shortly after 2 a.m. about one hour after a man was heard calling for help in the plant. A rescue party pulled out Maurice Crowell of Carthage.

Sheriff George Hickam said all of Crowell's clothing except his shoes were gone. The man was hospitalized in critical condition.

About 50 other persons were injured, most of them by flying glass as windows were smashed miles away.

A company spokesman set the replacement value of the plant at $6 million to $7 million, and estimated that 85 per cent of the plant was destroyed. Police said at least 145 homes around the plant were destroyed or heavily damaged.

Robert Good, plant manager, said the rest of the employees on the job had been accounted for. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes called out the National Guard and residents in a three-mile radius were moved from their homes.

Jack D. Hayes, Hercules vice president, said the plant makes dynamite, nitroglycerin and fertilizers but does not produce any munitions.

Guard Called OutYoung Girl
Key to Horror
at Chicago

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
CHICAGO (AP) — A petite Filipino girl whose dark, wide-set eyes first beheld the horror of eight butchered girlfriends — a sweat-soaked man's undershirt — a blood-splashed, clothing-strewn house full of fingerprints.

Coragon Amurao, 23, an exchange student lying heavily sedated in a hospital bed, is the only witness and survivor of the early morning slaughter of eight student nurses Thursday in a town house that served as a dormitory. Police hoped to question her today.

The undershirt, the fingerprints — these were among what police considered pitifully few clues to the identity of the nurses' killer.

The nurses were slain one by one — by strangling, stabbing or both. One girl's windpipe, carotid artery and jugular vein were cut. Tests to find if the girls were sexually molested were incomplete, although one girl was naked and five others in various stages of undress.

"We've got a subanimal here," said Police Cmdr. Francis Flanagan of the killer. "I've never seen anything more horrible than this."

Miss Amurao escaped the massacre by rolling under a bed. She lay there, unmoving, through the terror-filled night. The girl was so hysterical when she freed herself from her bonds at 5 a.m. that doctors would not permit detailed police interviews.

DEMOCRATIC primary voters have selected Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., 51, to run for his father's former seat in November. Byrd downed his opponent, former State Sen. Armistead L. Boothe, in the primary July 12.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Mt. Sinai Hospital. A spokesman at the morgue said she was shot in the head.

The man, shot a short time later, was identified as Raymond Williams, 22, of Robinsonville, Miss., by Cook County Hospital authorities. He also was dead on arrival.

It was not known who fired the fatal shots, police said. Chicago hospitals said they had treated or admitted about 50 persons. Police said more than 200 persons were arrested.

At least nine Negroes were shot and wounded, police said. Two policemen, including a captain, were shot in the back.

Six other policemen and a fireman were treated for superficial gunshot wounds and released, police said.

More than 900 policemen were sent into the area Thursday afternoon in an effort to quell the disturbances which were touched off Tuesday night when police turned off a fire hydrant in a neighborhood three miles east of Thursday night's and this morning's unrest.

Police said Williams and William McBeth, 18, were seen looting a store in the area, were chased into an alley and there Williams was shot and killed and McBeth wounded.

It was the same alley where a policeman, Donald Ingraham, about 31, was shot a few hours earlier as officers attempted to find a sniper in a building. He was admitted to St. Anthony's Hospital in good condition with a gunshot wound in his back.

2 Killed as Lawbreakers
Loot, Shoot

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois National Guard was called out today as three nights of disorders on Chicago's West Side swelled into full-scale rioting with sniping, looting and exchange of gunfire between police and lawbreakers.

In the third night of rioting, two Negroes were shot and killed, six policemen including a captain were shot and more than 300 persons were arrested. Numerous civilians also were wounded.

Gov. Otto Kerner ordered 3,000 guardsmen from 15 Chicago units of the Illinois National Guard to the scene at the request of Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago.

They will back up some 900 policemen who have been assigned to the area.

Policemen began carrying machine guns, shotguns, rifles and tear gas Thursday night in addition to pistols and night sticks to combat roving bands of vandals, looters, and snipers.

The Chicago Transit Authority shut down bus and elevated train service in the area and police blocked off most main thoroughfares in an effort to stem the looting and gunfire.

In one of the most violent incidents Thursday night, more than 100 policemen exchanged shots in an hour-long encounter with snipers in two high rise apartment buildings. Police finally moved in and cleared out both buildings.

Police filed charges today of conspiracy to commit treason against 13 of 20 persons arrested in the basement of one building raked by race rioting.

An officer declined to comment on the action except to say the charges were being filed as a result of a conference of police officials, the city attorney, and ACT, a civil rights group.

The Negroes slain were a young girl and a man.

The girl, Roseland Howard, 14, was hit by a stray bullet and killed as she stood on a front porch during a wave of trouble in the area, which is about four miles from the western edge of downtown Chicago.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Mt. Sinai Hospital. A spokesman at the morgue said she was shot in the head.

The man, shot a short time later, was identified as Raymond Williams, 22, of Robinsonville, Miss., by Cook County Hospital authorities. He also was dead on arrival.

Two Ballots for Fourth District

LITTLE ROCK (AP)— Leon B. Catlett, state Democratic Party chairman, reminded voters in the 4th District Thursday that they will have two ballots for the Democratic congressional race July 26.

One will list the Democratic congressional candidates as well as Democratic candidates seeking the party nomination for other posts. This ballot will be for the party's nomination for a full, two-year congressional term, Catlett said.

Another ballot with only the names of the Democratic candidates for Congress will be for the party's nomination for the remainder of the unexpired term of Oren Harris, who resigned to accept a federal judgeship.

Catlett said all the counties in the district had been notified that two separate ballots would be necessary for the July 26 primary on the congressional race.

Espionage Is Business of the CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The concrete headquarters of the Central Intelligence Agency are nestled in the wooded hills of Virginia, eight miles from Washington. Here, in a rustic setting, are planned cloak and dagger operations.

Here, also, is gathered, assembled and analyzed information—military, economic, political, industrial, scientific—the United States uses to guide its steps in a perilous world.

The business of espionage and secret operations has been described by Secretary of State Dean Rusk as a "tough struggle going on in the back alleys all over the world."

It is also so sensitive the Senate took the unusual step Thursday of clearing the galleries of press and public, and locking its doors for 3½ hours to wrangle over the Senate's supervision of the CIA.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield felt the locked-door precaution was necessary lest some "rumors and hearsay" be spilled out in the heat of debate and damage both the CIA and the United States.

The issue was the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's attempt, through a resolution, to put three of its members on the present CIA watchdog subcommittee, headed by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., heads the foreign relations group.

Arguing that his committee be given a role in overseeing CIA activities, Fulbright contended the intelligence agency is a major force affecting U.S. foreign policy.

But in a sharp exchange before the Senate had the galleries cleared, Russell accused Fulbright's committee of trying to muscle in.

Russell contended that practically all the intelligence information available to his CIA panel was available to Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee—except for the CIA's "methods and sources."

Fulbright has argued that the CIA had refused to give him information at a briefing last February about whether the CIA was using any overseas research or scholarship exchange programs as a cover for agents.

After the doors were barred Thursday, informants said, the senators spent much of their time arguing over the jurisdictional issues in the dispute between the Armed Services and the Foreign Relations committees.

The senators had agreed not to divulge just what was said. A censored transcript is to be released later.

But in trying to win its point, the Foreign Relations Committee was fighting city hall.

Russell made a point of order that the resolution should be turned over to his committee because he contended it had the jurisdiction.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, as presiding officer, said there was no precedent for this particular conflict so he turned the decision over to the Senate itself.

The Senate opened its doors and allowed newsmen and spectators to flow back into the galleries in time to see the senators vote 61 to 38 to support Russell's argument.

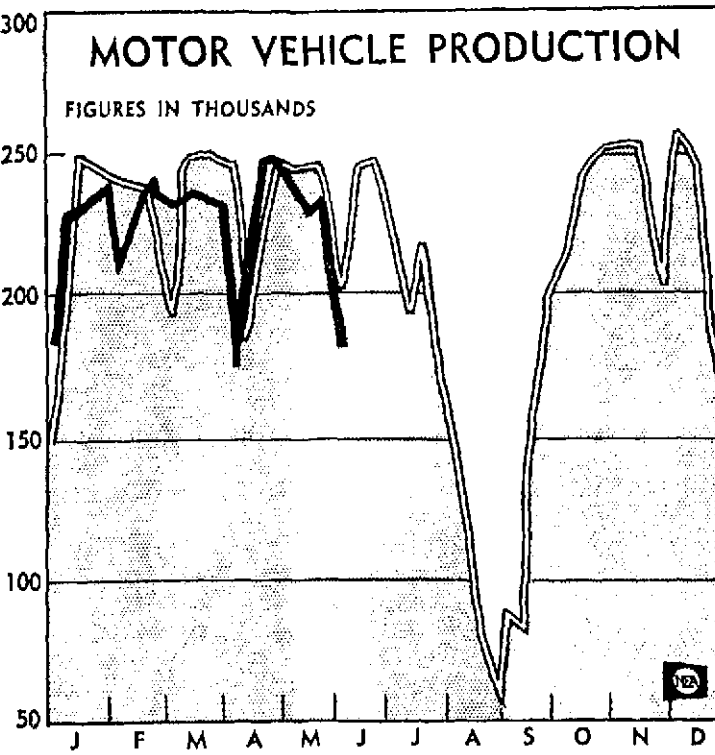

Russell was pleased with his victory. Asked by newsmen when he would hold hearings on the CIA resolution now that it was under his jurisdiction, he replied:

"They tried to pin me down on that. But I didn't promise them anything."

Bless Summer Camp—When Kids Are Gone

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — God bless summer camp!

They're good for the kids, but they are even better for the parents.

One of the major hypocrisies of our time is the idea that parents deserve credit for the financial sacrifice they make to send their children to summer camp for two weeks or a month.

"I had to borrow the money, but it's worth it," they say smugly. "The kids really need the fresh air and sunshine. It does wonders for them."

The truth of the matter is that most modern parents would gladly hold up a bank, if necessary, to raise the funds to send their kids into summer exile. Anything to get them out of sight and hearing for a while.

Of course, the first night they're away it is a bit hard on mother. The house is so silent without the thunder of little hooves.

"I miss my babies!" she wails.

"Yeah, me too," lies father, cheerfully mixing them a second martini.

But by the third day they openly admit they are having the time of their lives. Peace, it's wonderful.

No hideous rock 'n' roll music blares from the phonograph. Cobwebs begin to gather on the unused telephone. Mother no longer has to pick up scattered clothing from the floor. Dad can listen to any television program he wants—or even turn the darned thing off entirely. They can go to the movies without having to pay a teen-age baby sitter the down payment on her college education.

They get a sadistic parental pleasure out of reading the mail from camp Wah-Nee-Poh-Poo—Indian for "Land of Happy Waters."

The photos of camp Wah-Nee-Poh-Poo show it to be a nondescript collection of rustic cabins around a tired lake. But according to the graphic, illiterate letters from its young inmates it is a place of horror and torture, surrounded by barbed wire and patrolled by guards with machine guns and savage dogs.

Glee stirs in every parent's heart as he reads about the sufferings of his offspring:

"Plees let me come home. I'll be so good—cross my hart."

"It's awful here. Nothing but bread and water to eat. Honest. They won't even let you have chewing gum. If they katch you with it, they make you hang by

"Daddy, come get me. M counslore is a real ratfink. If w don't do eggzackly what sh says, she curses us."

"Are you going to the res cue?" I inquired.

POSITION NO. 4

Political Adv. Paid By Courtney Crouch and Louis Ramsay

We're helping build education in Hempstead County.

We at First National believe education is a vital force in the future of Southwest Arkansas. And we believe the Red River Vocational Technical School here in Hope is a giant step in education in this area. That's why our president, Thomas E. Hays, Jr., presented scholarships to J. W. Rowe, director of the school.

You see, we gave a total of seven scholarships—one for each of the seven departments in the school: Office Practices, Practical Nursing, Forestry, Welding, Machine Shop and Plant Maintenance Mechanic, Diesel and Heavy Truck Mechanic, and Heavy Equipment Operations.

We're hoping seven ambitious young people will take these First National scholarships and use them to help build Hope and Hempstead County along with us.

As "the action bank in Hope" it's the least that we could do.

Television and Radio

By HY AVERBACK
(For Cynthia Lowry)

EDITOR'S NOTE—Hy Averbach is the producer of ABC's "F Troop," a sort of 1860 Bilko show set in the Old West. It is notable for the fact that it contains what are called "blocked-comedy sequences" and plenty of slapstick. Averbach is an actor and director who specializes in broad comedy.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Slapstick buff bemoans the fact that the great physical comedians are all gone. They cry that no new stars in this genre have come along to replace them.

I don't agree.
Of course we miss Buster Keaton. Certainly there were too few Stan Laurels. And most of us look fondly at those old Charlie Chaplin two-reelers whenever they are shown. However, as long as there are talents around like my gang in "F Troop," there will always be slapstick on tap for those who enjoy it—and I think that takes in most of us.

"F Troop" is one of the very few shows on television today that can take full advantage of this classic comedy form. Most series are handicapped because their formats preclude the strictly physical joke—or because their performers aren't capable of handling this sort of humor.

Broad-sight gags were part of the original blueprint for "F Troop," and the show was intentionally cast with people who had ability in this field. We've even made actors out of stunt men in some instances.

In the great slapstick comedies of the past, the audience always knew something funny was going to happen to the comic—and soon. When the camera was on Chaplin as he walked in his peculiar way, it was inevitable that something hilarious would happen to him.

To watch Ken Berry, who plays our Capt. Parmenter, walk across the Ft. Courage compound is to watch a disaster in the making. You know that before he reaches the assembled troop he will have tripped over the hitching rail, tangled his scabbard in a horse's bridle, or accidentally fired the fort's only cannon and shot down the lookout tower—again.

Only a trained dancer like Berry could manage this.

Forrest Tucker and Larry Storch—two more inventive low comedians have never existed.

Larry has revived one of the finest old bits in vaudeville, using his battered hat as a disciplinary weapon. Tucker is the scheming, expressive con man in the best burlesque tradition.

They're all not only willing but capable of going the slapstick route, playing it to the hilt. Very few of their contemporaries are willing to fall down, mug, cry or take a pie in the face in every series outing—even to get good solid laughs.

British Institute Changes Name

LONDON (AP)—The British Institute of Sewage Purification announced today it is changing its name to the Institute of Water Pollution Control.

Tournament was played. Mrs. Elizabeth McClendon of Texarkana was the winner and Mrs. Albert Bray of Lewisville, the runner-up.

Summer flowers decorated the clubhouse for a delicious potluck luncheon served at noon to 25. Those not wishing to swim or to play golf enjoyed bridge in the afternoon. High scorer was Mrs. Carl Bramlett, second high was Mrs. H. C. Whitworth, and the winner of the game prize was Mrs. Thompson Evans, Jr.

Hostesses were Mrs. Jack Webb, Mrs. Joe Watkins, and Mrs. Albert Bray.

SS Club Meets

On July 8 the Shover Springs Extension Homemakers Club met in the home of Mrs. Grady Dillard. After the president, Mrs. Bob Dillard, had called the meeting to order, the hostess read Psalm 8 for the Devotion.

All sang "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" under the leadership of Mrs. Homer Poindexter, and Mrs. Wilton Mullins demonstrated making hair-net caps for the Eye Opener.

Nine members answered the roll call with "One Way I Make Friends," and the same line of thought was followed in Mrs. Bob Dillard's Lesson, "Meeting People and Making Friends."

To conclude the program Mrs. Poindexter gave a poem, "Face to Face With Our Maker." During the social hour Mrs. Floyd Mangum directed a game which Mrs. Wilton Mullins won. The Door Prize went to Mrs. Cliff East. Cookies and cold drinks were served to the members and 15 children.

An Ice Cream Supper will be held for the August meeting in the Shover Springs Hall, and the September meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Wilton Mullins.

Bridge Club Meets

The Heritage Bridge Club met on Thursday, July 14 at the Heritage House, and Mrs. Mildred Rogers was a club guest. Following a tasty luncheon, bridge was played at three tables.

High scorer was Mrs. K. G. Hamilton and Mrs. S. L. Murphy was second high. The consolation prize went to the guest, Mrs. Rogers and the game prize to Mrs. Emma Hatley.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

Jimmy Durante's life may be the next show business biography to appear on the Broadway stage. During a recent visit here, former MGM chief Dore Schary discussed with Durante and his agents his proposal for a musical play based on the comedian's earlier years. Schary should know his subject; back in the 1930s he wrote gags for Durante's radio show.

If the stage biography succeeds, it will undoubtedly lead to a film version.

Now two James Bond movies are shooting at once. "Casino Royale," first of the Ian Fleming books, which Charles Feldman bought before the Bondomania, is still filming in England after months of production. Unable to secure the services of Sean Connery, Feldman is having a series of stars impersonate Bond.

"You Only Live Twice" has also started filming in England, with Connery in his customary role. The company will shift to Japan later this summer.

Edward G. Robinson appeared in public for the first time since his accident and operation. He showed up at the "Torn Curtain" preview looking hale and hearty, and chortled over the line by an Iron Curtain thug who commented that a situation in the movie was "just like an Edward G. Robinson movie."

"Torn Curtain" turned out to be, as the master predicted, "Vintage Hitchcock." It's a welcome return to his suspense-and-chase films. And the bed scene of Julie Andrews and Paul Newman will indeed pop the eyes of the "Mary Poppins" fans.

Claim He's Held Incommunicado

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—U. S. District Judge J. Smith Henley dismissed Wednesday a writ of habeas corpus to free a man serving a 15-year sentence from the Arkansas Penitentiary.

The petition was filed by William Perry Burgess, who said he had been held incommunicado at the Tucker Prison Farm for 14 days before his appearance in Lonoke Circuit Court Jan. 7.

Henley dismissed the petition "for want of merit."

Burgess, 23, was sentenced on charges of auto theft and assault with intent to kill. He pleaded guilty at his trial.

FOR THE LADIES—Three-quarters of a century of service by the America's women's clubs is being marked with a new five-cent stamp. The General Federation of Women's Clubs commemorative goes on sale Sept. 12.

Youth Asked For It!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US! it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help US! this newspaper.

Receiving Line Not For Boy Friends

Dear Helen:
Every time I get a new boy friend I have to bring him home before I can date him. That isn't bad, you say?

Know what's waiting at home when I bring him? The whole darn receiving line—Mom and Dad, my grown brothers, my two older sisters, a couple of aunts and uncles, and my grandmother!

If they aren't all there at once—they usually are, because I have to announce when he's coming—they still manage to "interview" him the next time around.

You can see how boys would get pushed out of shape by this. A fella would have to like me awfully well to run all that interference. My brothers are the worst. They Ask Questions 'capital letters!'

Maybe you could say something in your column about families not scaring boys off. —CLAIRE

Dear Claire:
Be glad to. Family of Claire: disappear! Let her mother and father be official boy friend greeters. A mere date isn't the occasion for the Gathering of the Clan. —H.

Dear Helen:
My boy friend has gone to Viet Nam. We had plans to get married, but decided to wait until he returns.

He does not write to me nor to his folks. Should we try to get in touch with him to see if he's hurt? Or what? —TORY

Dear Tory:
If he were hurt, his folks would be the first to hear. Keep writing and try not to fret. Your boy friend is busy. A jungle isn't like a quiet room with a desk... and by men, even that ideal set-up doesn't inspire many letters. —H.

About Liquor Laws

Dear Helen:
It's probably right that changing the liquor law to age 18 wouldn't make much difference in teenage drinking—those that want to drink will, whether it's legal or not, and those that don't won't anyway.

But lawmakers should think about this: The fine in our state for changing your ID card (driver's license, etc.) is stiff—not a kiddie's slap on the wrist. If a minor forges his age to get whiskey he's liable for adult punishment. Does that make sense?

We can fight for our country, but we can't toast it in anything stronger than pop.

A judge we can't vote for can hand us 20-year-olds an adult sentence and send us to adult prisons.

Males in our state can't marry without our parents' permission until we are 21, but the government can pick us up and dump us 15,000 miles away from home, where for darn sure there's no matter to guide us. Wonder what would happen if we wrote to the draft board: "My Mamma won't let me, I'm a minor."

What's fair about it? —WESTERNER
Dear Westerner:
Almost everyone agrees there's nothing fair about all this, but nobody does anything about it. What you 18, 19 and 20-year-olds need is a fast talking, hard working lobby group. Do I hear volunteers?—H.

Dear Helen:
I go to summer school, and my brother goes to summer college, as he is a teacher. We live in a city that is famous for being hot. But almost none of our schools have air conditioning.

They make such a big fuss about teaching kids, but for two months, at least, we don't learn much because we're cooked. So we try to make it up in the summer and then we fry. What can we do? —HEAT FRUSTRATION.

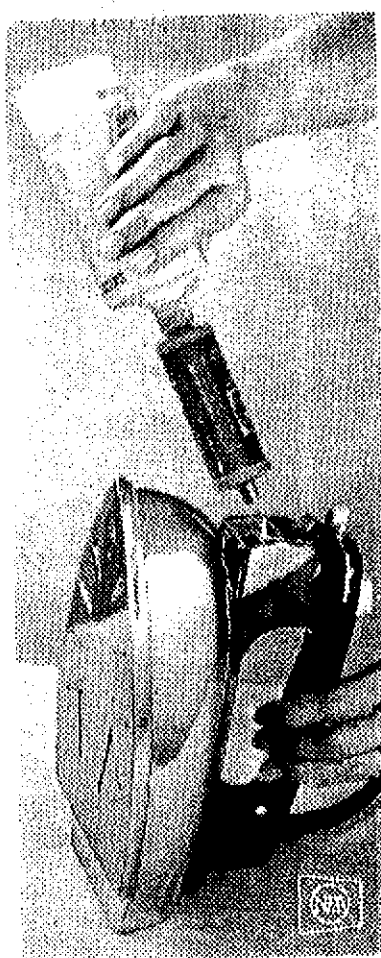

Dear H.F.:
How about writing letters to your newspaper editor, the school board and the P.T.A.? Year-round schools should be equipped for it. —H.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Anemia Is Chief Danger Of Recurrent Nosebleeds

BY WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"I am a housewife. About six months ago I had a nose bleed. I stopped it by pressing on my nose for five minutes but about once a month I get another nosebleed. Is this serious?"

"In some women a nose-bleed that recurs every month is a part of the menstrual cycle. If this is your trouble, it is not serious but your doctor or a nose specialist should examine you to see if there is a condition that can be corrected. The chief danger from frequently recurring nosebleeds is anemia. This type of anemia, however, responds readily to treatment."

"A terrible odor comes from my nose. My doctor says I have ozema. Can anything be done for it?"

"Ozena is a severe chronic rhinitis characterized by a wasting of the nasal mucous membrane and often accompanied by a loss of the sense of smell. The cause is unknown. There is no cure but it can sometimes be controlled by antibiotics and large doses of niacin or tolazoline to improve the circulation in the diseased tissues."

"What is septal deviation? Is there any treatment for it?"

"This is a bending of the septum (partition between the nostrils) to one side. The result is a partial or complete blocking of the nostril. It can be relieved by removing the cartilage in the septum."

"Can a chronic postnasal drip cause hoarseness? What could cause paralysis of the larynx? Is there any treatment for it?"

"If the postnasal drip is caused by a chronic low-grade infection, this could extend to the larynx and cause hoarseness. An allergic postnasal drip would be less likely to do so.

Paralysis of the larynx may be caused by cutting the nerve supply to the larynx (one of the hazards of the removal of a goiter) or a tumor of the vocal cords. Many persons with paralysis of the vocal cord on one side have been benefited by an injection of Teflon into the affected cord.

"I have heard that quinine is being used in the treatment of heart trouble as well as for malaria. Is this true?"

"Quinine has been used to treat attacks of very rapid pulse but for this purpose the closely related quinidine is preferred."

"My son has abdominal epilepsy. He doesn't have convulsions but has pain in his abdomen. What is the cause and the best treatment?"

"This disease is characterized by abnormal electric brain waves and abdominal pains that are relieved by the anticonvulsant drugs given for epilepsy. The cause is unknown."

No bid of less than par and accrued interest will be entertained, and the award, if made, will be to the bidder whose bid results in the lowest net interest cost to the District (determined by computing the aggregate interest cost at the rate bid and deducting therefrom any premium bid).

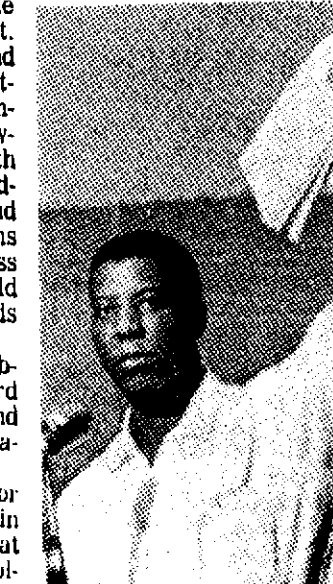

The assessed valuation of all taxable property within the school district for the year 1965, the last assessment of record, is $9,009,883.

The bonds will be sold upon auction bids at 2 o'clock p.m., on the 25 day of July 1966 in the office of the Superintendent of Schools, Hope, Arkansas. Each bidder will be required to file a certified or cashier's check in the amount of $1400 on a bank that is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, payable to the District, to be kept as liquidated damages if the bidder is awarded the sale of the bonds and fails to complete the purchase. The convention devised by Bobby Wolff provides a way for a player to respond with a very weak hand and get off the hook if the opener's rebid is a jump to two no-trump.

When South rebid at three clubs he was using the Wolff convention. North's rebid to three diamonds was the required call and if South had continued to three spades North would have passed.

However, South rebid to three no-trump. This bid conveyed the message that South could have gone directly to three no-trump over two. Thus, North realized that South's club bid was in the nature of a mild slam try. North looked over his hand and saw that he held perfect cards for a slam opposite a club suit.

North went to four clubs as an extra check to see if his partner did have clubs. North was an expert as was South and experts always are careful with their partner's club bids.

When South went to five clubs North knew that South held a club suit. His five heart bid was a mild effort to get to a grand slam but South was glad to settle for six.

The slam contract was a good one. South won the heart opening, drew trumps and went after spades. When the spade suit broke South was able to discard one heart and two diamonds from dummy. Then he took the diamond finesse. Had it worked, he would have made seven.

The slam would probably have been easier to bid without the Wolff convention but, as we pointed out yesterday, the Wolff convention is certainly meant for use by strong partnerships.

Q—The bidding has been:

What do you do?
A—Bid five hearts. Your partner is trying for a slam and showing second round spade control. You have already shown your full strength and should sign off in hearts where the hand is going to play.

Art Gallery for Blind

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

(ADVANCE) RALEIGH, N.C., June 25 (AP) — The hands moved slowly across the bronze figure, paused as the fingers explored for detail, then inched down to the base of the sculpture.

"Wow, what a head of hair," said 18-year-old Johnny Brown as he completed his inspection of a bust of Beethoven by a famed French artist, Antoine Bourdelle.

Young Bill McClure was studying "Wolf Attacking Stag," a sculpture by Antoine Louis Barye. His hands followed the design once, twice, then again.

"Now," he said, "I know exactly what a deer looks like."

The two friends already had examined works by Auguste Rodin, Edgar Degas, Louis Clodion, Auguste Renoir, a 20,000-year-old stone figure and a modern abstract by Roy Gussow.

Johnny Brown and Bill McClure are blind.

It had been slow, tedious work for the youths as they toured the 16-by-32 foot room at the North Carolina Museum of Art. The room contains 64 works of art.

Charles Stanford watched their progress around the small art gallery. The bespectacled Princeton graduate, who is curator of education for the North Carolina Museum of Art, was seeing a five-year dream become a reality.

The two sightless youths were only the first of thousands who will tour the nation's first art gallery for the blind, which opened in March.

Stanford conceived the idea of the gallery, perfected the plan and spent 12 months putting it into operation. It is housed in a section of the Museum of Art and contains works valued at $500,000.

As a sighted visitor, you must close your eyes before entering the room, to get a reaction similar to that of the blind. You reach for the borders of the door. Wide counters encircle the walls. A walnut guide rail, waist high to the average adult, edges the counters. Grasp the rail and your fingers automatically touch inside, feeling the labels in Braille, describing the items on the counters. The works of art are easily within reach and directly in front of the description.

The exhibit begins with a small Stone Age figure. It progresses through the stylized Egyptian and idealized Greek eras to the realism of the Renaissance, the motion of Baroque, the neoclassic, the Impressionists, and ends with the abstract sculpture of today.

Included in the gallery is a reading area with tables and chairs. Nearby is a reference library, including Janson's "History of Art," one of the few ever transcribed into Braille.

The gallery was designed by Charles Ross, a student in the School of Design at North Carolina State University in Raleigh, and created with a grant of $17,500 from the Mary Duke Biddle Foundation.

The works of art were loaned to the gallery by individual collectors, galleries and museums throughout the nation. "There was one difficult problem," Stanford said, "We far have been students from the state's schools for the blind. Stanford is convinced the project "has helped develop the blind observers' powers of perception, knowledge and imagination, and has given a glimpse into a realm of man's civilization that before now seldom has been available for the blind."

He concluded: "Remember this youth who touched the sculpture and at least knew in his mind what a stag looks like. It would have been impossible for him to gain a mental picture otherwise. He could not have touched a live stag and learned. But Antoine Louis Barye, who died in 1875, has given a new grasp on life to a 1966 teen-ager."

In gloomy assessments after Thursday's joint session, both Joseph W. Ramsey, chief union negotiator, and William J. Curtin, chief airlines negotiator, made clear that the talks were stalemated.

"We're 50 miles apart, pole to pole," Ramsey, an IAM vice president, told newsmen. "If the airlines have any new offer I haven't seen it."

Asked how the talks were going, Ramsey said they were not going at all. "We're as far apart as ever," he said.

Curtin said he agreed with Ramsey's use of the term "far apart" and said: "Don't look for early settlement of this dispute." He said the strike could continue into next week.

Asst. Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds, who is presiding over the talks, emphasized that there are no new issues blocking negotiations beyond those that prompted the union to walk out.

The strike is costing the airlines and union about $8 million daily. Its effects—particularly to the massive summer tourist business—are also very costly.

The struck airlines agreed to bargain jointly with the union last August. Braniff, Continental and Northeast airlines, with employees represented by the Machinists, did not enter into the agreement and have not been had to advise the donors that the objects must be touched, must be handled. That is something which seldom has been permitted in an art museum."

Some of North Carolina's 11,000 blind tour the gallery daily. Most of the visitors thus

Ike Image in Washington Still Potent

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara demonstrated anew this week that the Eisenhower image remains a potent one on the Washington scene.

Asked at a news conference to explain his apparent change of heart about the wisdom of bombing the Hanoi and Haiphong oil depots, McNamara said conditions had changed and added: "I think it was essentially this same line of reasoning that led Gen. Eisenhower to make the statement that he did."

By invoking the Eisenhower name, McNamara was doing what comes naturally. When you make a controversial decision look to the former president for a first line of defense.

This is what President John F. Kennedy did after Dwight D. Eisenhower left the White House in January 1961 and this is what President Johnson has done since.

It's usually a safe gambit. Having shouldered the burden of presidential decision-making and concomitant criticism for eight years, Eisenhower generally is a sympathetic source of support.

The byproducts of his support are considerable.

There is the political insurance inherent in a former Republican president's endorsement of a Democratic administration's decision.

Some of the controversy is squeezed out of the decision by giving it a bipartisan coloring.

And so Kennedy and Johnson employed this tactic again and again, and did not confine its use to highly controversial matters.

Dismissal of Suit Brings GOP Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders are expected to call today for a congressional inquiry into the government's dismissal of an antitrust suit against the Anheuser-Busch Co. after officials of the brewing firm contributed $10,000 to a Democratic fund-raising organization.

A spokesman for the company said "the whole thing is preposterous."

It was understood that Rep. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., would call for the inquiry in a House speech today.

The issue was first raised Wednesday by House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford. He told a news conference "disturbing rumors" were circulating that the Johnson administration may have dropped antitrust suits against companies whose executives contributed to the Democrats. Ford gave no names.

A check of government records showed that on May 24 the August A. Busch family and two company executives made contributions totaling $10,000 to the President's Club, composed of persons who contribute at least $1,000 to the Democrats.

On June 17, records showed, the Justice Department dropped a civil antitrust suit seeking to force the company to divest itself of a malting plant in Wisconsin it had acquired from the Rahr Malting Co. The suit was dismissed without prejudice — meaning it could be refilled later, officials said.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach said the Justice Department had voluntarily consented to dismissal of two antitrust cases this year, including the one against Anheuser-Busch.

The second case, dismissed Wednesday, was a civil suit charging several paper producers with conspiring to hold down prices they paid for pulp wood, Katzenbach said. He added he authorized dismissal of the cases upon recommendation of Asst. Atty. Gen. Donald F. Turner, head of the antitrust division, and members of his staff. "Reviews of the cases after all evidence had been accumulated indicated that further prosecution was not warranted," Katzenbach said in a statement.

Group to Make Underwater Test

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Havana Radio said today that two oceanographic technicians, a Cuban and a Czech, will live three days in an underwater house more than 45 feet underwater.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said the experiment will be held off Guanabo Beach, 15 miles from Havana.

JUMBO-JOCKEY — Actor Gene Barry was the big winner in a series of races at the Elephant Jockey Club, Sydney, Australia. Barry is shown in the victory parade which climaxed the charity event.

THEN & NOW

While all of us pay attention to our grooming, few people realize how ideas of what makes a man look his best have changed. And thanks to a wide array of easy-to-use grooming aids, modern man spends a lot less time on his appearance than did his counterpart of 150 years ago.

When Napoleon Bonaparte controlled most of Europe, many men of the day wore powdered wigs. Unlike his contemporaries, however, Napoleon is said to have never used one. His dark hair was almost a trade mark.

Today, men can keep their hair looking neat all day without using messy preparations in untidy tubes or jars. A new formula grooming hair spray for men from Ed. Pinaud, Inc. — a firm that sold cosmetics to Napoleon — comes in aerosol form and is not greasy, sticky or stiff. With YU hair spray, well-groomed hair is just a push of a button away.

Foes Declare Mills Doesn't Help Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Democrat opposing Rep. Wilbur Mills in the 1st District congressional race charged Tuesday night that Mills has not tried to get government facilities and plants to locate in Arkansas.

Further, charged Jack Eardley of Little Rock, Mills has let the federal government "cart off the measly share of federal projects and facilities we once had."

Eardley, a psychiatrist, attacked both Mills and Sam Boyce, a Democratic candidate for governor, in a televised speech.

Although he didn't refer to Boyce by name, his references were clear.

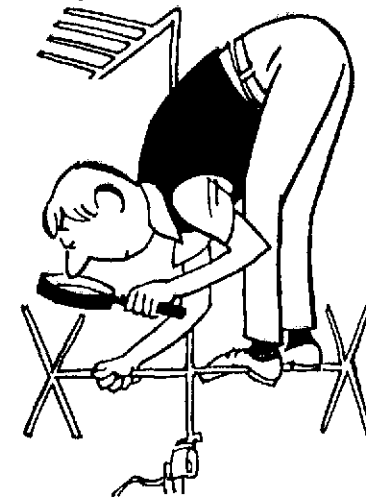

Eardley said Boyce, a former aide to Mills, misused his "office of leadership in the Young Democratic Party to promote his own personal gain," and "did not hesitate to destroy the political party to attempt to advance his own personal interest."

Eardley called Boyce a political stepchild tutored by Mills, who was "sent back to Arkansas for the purpose of besmirching the virtues of our dedicated state officials, to lead a program of character assassination and to bring about a disruption in the Democratic Party, the aim being to divide and conquer."

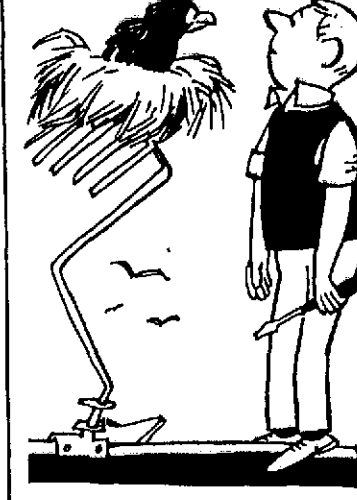

To make a distress signal, deep-sea divers hold up four fingers or rap on an object four times.

ANTENNA ANTICS

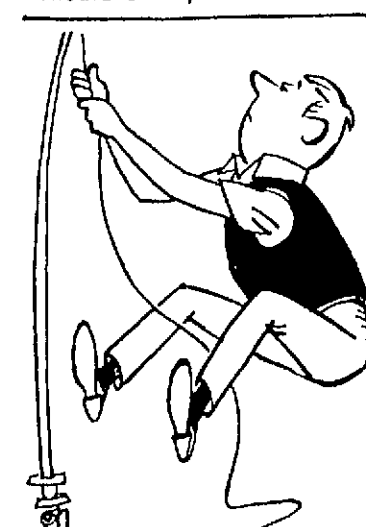

Now's the time to check that television antenna to be sure of good reception in the months to come, particularly when winter's ice and wind sets in again, television maintenance experts say. Here's a simple check list suggested by Alliance Manufacturing Co. that a homeowner can manage himself.

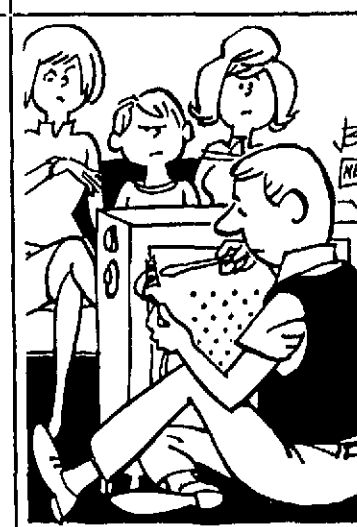

Any broken parts? Even a short broken piece can degrade picture quality and should be replaced.

Any unwanted additions? In particular, airborne chemicals and rust should be removed from connections.

Guy wires firm? Better to repair a weakness now than pay the cost later of a toppled antenna.

Any broken or frayed leads on wires from set to antenna? If in doubt, play safe and refasten the leads.

What's he earning?

Money, of course! Sometimes the money a boy earns as a Junior Independent Merchant makes quite a difference in the kind of clothing, toys, trips, and education he gets.

But, just as often his parents are doctors, lawyers, school administrators, and successful business executives. Money is not as important to them. And while every boy gets satisfaction from being able to buy things for himself and others without going to his parents, money is not the primary reason these parents encourage their sons to become newspaperboys.

Much More than Money! The development of poise, while many of his classmates are still "all thumbs"; the ability to get along with all kinds of people; the capacity for taking responsibility; and the knowledge that he is a salesman. These will pay far greater dividends in the years to come.

And this is why successful men, many of whom were newspaperboys a generation ago, so strongly recommend to their sons that they get the greatly improved "basic training" provided for today's newspaperboys.

If you think your son might profit by newspaperboy route experience, fill out this card and return to the Circulation Dept. Hope Star.
